Major Strikes in 2010

Pick n Pay 24 September – 12 November

Pick 'n Pay striking workers intensify strike action

SACCAWU 4 November 2010

The Strike by SACCAWU members employed at Pick 'n Pay is entering its seventh day today, with still no movement from the side of management, except what seems to be a joint orchestrated onslaught on shopping centres/malls, management and SAPS/police. Workers started their strike on 29th October 2010 and despite the very successful ten marches in various parts of the country and the thousands of striking workers and supporters joining the protest marches to hand over a memorandum to management at different stores, the company continues to display extreme hostility and in response to our memorandum the company simply reiterated the position they held at the time of the collapse of conciliation.

SACCAWU Pick 'n Pay Strike update - All pick 'n Pay striking workers in Klerksdorp arrested!

SACCAWU 2 November 2010

In the latest development of collusion between mall managers, Pick 'n Pay store managers and SAPS all the workers on the picket-line at Klerksdorp has been arrested, for singing and shouting slogans on the picket-line. This is another instance demonstrating the extent to which Pick 'n Pay will go to try and break the strike.

COSATU calls for boycott of Pick n Pay in solidarity with SACCAWU strikers

Cosatu 29 October 2010

The Congress of South African Trade Unions pledges its total support for the 27 000 workers on strike from today, 29 October 2010, at Pick n Pay outlets, and calls on all its members and all customers to boycott the company's stores until a settlement of the strike has been reached.

UCT WORKers message of Solidarity to Pick 'n Pay striking workers

UCT JOINT SHOP STEWARDS COUNCIL

28 October 2010

Dear Comrades,

We send greetings and solidarity to all Pick n Pay and affiliated workers. We support your demands. We support your industrial action, especially strike action. Like you we know how the bosses force us to use our weapon of the strike. It is a good weapon and one of the strongest we as workers have. When we strike we are showing the bosses our strength and we, as the working class, have a lot of strength.

SACCAWU Press Release: Pick 'n Pay workers plan of action

SACCAWU 25 October 2010

The ongoing Pick 'n Pay wage dispute has not been resolved yet. SACCAWU has submitted wage and improved working conditions proposals for 2010 to the Company during December 2009 and workers were due to receive their increases at the beginning of March 2010. After numerous attempts to resolve this dispute and almost one-year later there is still no resolution in sight, thus SACCAWU members at Pick 'n Pay are preparing for strike.

In Gauteng, workers will stage a march on the 28th October 2010, while nine other marches will take place throughout the country on the 29th October.

The Gauteng march will take place on the 28th of October 2010 where members and supporters will deliver a memorandum of demands at the Chris Hani Crossing newly opened store in Vosloorus. The memorandum will be delivered at 13h45.

Further protest marches planned for the 29th October 2010 as set out below:

City/Town Operating Unit/Destination Time for handover of the memorandum

1. Bloemfontein Bloemfontein Hypermarket 13h00
2. Cape Town Kenilworth Store 13h00
3. Durban Durban City Hall 13h00
4. East London Vincent Park Store 13h00
5. George Garden Route Mall Store 13h00
6. Nelspruit Riverside Mall Store 13h00
7. Polokwane Savannah Mall Store 13h00
8. Port Elizabeth Walmer Park Store 13h00
9. Vereeniging Bedworth Park Hypermarket 13h00

Pick n Pay workers plan strike

Business Report 25 October 2010

Pick n Pay workers nationwide plan to begin a strike over wages and conditions of employment on Friday, a union spokesman said on Monday.

"We will start on Friday in all regions," said SA Commercial Catering and Allied Workers' Union deputy general secretary Mduzuzi Mbongwe.

The parties were meeting at the Commission for Conciliation, Mediation and Arbitration on Tuesday to finalise picketing rules, but, Mbongwe said consumers could expect picketing near all the country's stores.

The Johannesburg region would set the tone on Thursday with a march to a new store opening in Vosloorus.

Some of the issues up for negotiation had been resolved, but there were still many outstanding matters, he said.

Matters agreed on were that the minimum wage for category one workers be R3 000, compared with the R3 500 opening demand and a uniform cleaning allowance of R51.35 compared with the demand of R70.

They had brought their original demand of an across-the-board increase of R895 or 20 percent down to a R550 per month increase or 12 percent, whichever was greater, and this was still being negotiated.

They were also still trying to reach agreement on: whether they should get a 10 percent discount on basic items; an offer that workers pay R5.50 for their subsidised meals instead of the R5.70 Pick n Pay proposed; 120 guaranteed working hours per month for all variable-time employees; that the difference between each category be adjusted from the current R160 to R300, and that employees receive 100 shares in the form of a gift at five years of service and every five years thereafter.

The union said they were prepared to refer the incentive issue to a second process.

They also wanted cashiers applying for positions of either front line supervisors or cash office positions to retain their cashier two days off per month when promoted. As cashiers they usually worked six days a week, said Mbongwe.

In a statement Pick n Pay said the matters of labour brokers and centralised bargaining were not part of its current dispute with Saccawu.

Centralised bargaining existed with a high number of South African retailers, including themselves. Labour brokering was not in dispute between the union and Pick n Pay.

Mbongwe agreed with this.

The company said the current dispute was about wages and conditions of employment, regarding demands tabled by the union in December 2009.

Pick n Pay reiterated it was also not reinstating its year-end functions, which Saccawu had claimed was an attempt at sweetening them.

They were just going to have their usual in-store festive season function, the statement read. - Sapa

YCLSA calls for Consumer Boycott of Pick and Pay Products in Solidarity with SACCAWU workers
SACP 14 OCTOBER 2010

The Young Communist League of South Africa (uFasimba) calls on all its members, and all members of COSATU Affiliates, ANC and its leagues (ANC YL, ANC WL and ANC VL) and the SACP to support the striking workers of Pick 'n Pay by engaging in a consumer boycott for the duration of the strike. We implore on all South Africans to join in on this consumer boycott as the profits they generate for Pick 'n Pay never trickles down to the working class and the poor.

Protest hits campuses

STUDENT protests at the embattled Midlands campus of the Durban University of Technology's have spread to the Durban campus in KwaZulu-Natal.

Yesterday university authorities suspended lectures at all four of its campuses in Durban.

This after hundreds of students protested over grievances not addressed by management earlier this year.

In January students in Durban went on strike for a week over several issues, severely interrupting the registration process.

On Monday the university's Midlands campus in Pietermaritzburg was closed after violent clashes between students and the police.

Police reinforcements were called in to supplement private campus security police.

No confrontations, injury or damages were reported during the protest.

But the protest disrupted exam venues and some students had to return home without writing their papers.

Student representative council president Buyisani Mlaba said the strike was a continuation of grievances that were forwarded to the university's management last month.

Mlaba said they were still protesting against shortages of accommodation for students and calling for the expulsion of director of housing Doc Nyasengwe .

He also said the pricing and the quality of food provided to students was unacceptable.

"During the last strike management said it was our task to find accommodation, but whatever we have come up with has been turned down," Mlaba said yesterday.

"We understand we are interrupting classes but we want these issues to be resolved."

Police spokesperson Captain Khephu Nldovu said their presence on campuses was aimed at safety and there had been no reports of damage to property.

"There was no confrontation between students and the police and nobody was injured ," Ndlovu said.

Acting vice-chancellor Nqabomzi Gawe said lectures in Durban had been suspended until tomorrow .

"Management at DUT have suspended all academic activities on all campuses with immediate effect until Friday (tomorrow) due to difficulties experienced in relation to the student protests this morning," she said.

Gawe said management at the Midlands campus in Pietermaritzburg was in talks with student representatives to address grievances.

Lectures in Pietermaritzburg we re expected to resume today.

DUT campuses closed again

Lauren Holley 19 March 2010

All DUT campuses have been closed again.

Management said via a statement a short while ago that the decision's been taken due to the volatile situation involving acts of violence and vandalism, and in fear for the safety of staff and students.

This latest closure comes after a series of violent protests at DUT campuses in Durban and the Midlands this week.

Yesterday management said that academic activities would resume today after violent protests led to the closure of all campuses on Wednesday.

But management has again ceased all academic activity until next week Tuesday and staff and students have now been sent home.

Meanwhile, a group of protesting students has marched from the Steve Biko Campus to Curry's Fountain in Durban.

Police spokesperson Vincent Mdunge says they're keeping a close watch on the situation, which got heated at the campus earlier today.

"We had a group of about 200 students who were threatening to assault the security officers. But the members of the public order policing unit who were there, intervened immediately and the situation has since subsided."
