Documentary: "Canada's Dark Secret"

By Al Jazeera, YouTube.

Duration: 1 hour.

This short film aims to educate the public on the, the last residential school in Canada, that closed in 1996, bringing to light horrifying stories. "In Canada, the Indian residential school system was a network of boarding schools for Indigenous peoples. The network was funded by the Canadian government's Department of Indian Affairs and administered by Christian churches." The majority of children enrolled into these schools were forcibly removed or kidnapped from their homes without their parent's consent. These are their stories. Join us by watching this film and joining in a discussion about the events that occurred and the similarities that South Africans have faced and continue to fight against.
